Senior Physicians: Addressing Age, Ability and Acumen

The topic of the aging physician has timely and immediate relevance to the promotion of patient safety and quality patient care. “Senior Physicians: Addressing Age, Ability and Acumen” is made possible through an educational grant from Coverys Community Healthcare Foundation.

We will focus on exploring appropriate measures and initiatives needed to assure that physicians practice with competence and skill throughout their careers. Topics of discussion include how state agencies, hospital/healthcare systems and large group medical practices are dealing with issues of cognitive and physical function in aging physicians; what tools/guidelines exist for assessment and decision-making; how to maintain the valuable resource that aging physicians represent while protecting patient safety; and, ultimately, to prepare physicians for a successful and productive transition to retirement.
