Presidential Inauguration
and Awards Ceremony

MASSACHUSETTS
MEDICAL SOCIETY

Every physician matters, each patient counts.

President's Welcome and Acknowledgments

Dear Friends,

This evening is the culmination of my presidential year. It is a time to — in person — recognize and honor some very special members and inaugurate and congratulate our incoming officers. It has been an honor and a privilege for me to serve as your president this past year.

Our Massachusetts Medical Society (MMS) truly is the premier medical society in the country. Your dedication and commitment to our profession and the patients we serve is something that should make us all proud. We should be extremely grateful for our awesome staff, who, in addition to providing administrative support, helped us action all the tremendous work of our committees, advisory groups, taskforces, sections, and our HOD. We are truly a family all working together to realize the goal, "Every physician matters, each patient counts."

Thank you all again for your dedication, passion, and support. To my fellow officers, President-elect Barbara Spivak and Vice President Hugh Taylor, I wish you great success in the year to come.

Ted

Presidents during COVID-19

A special note to the Pandemic Presidents:

Drs. Bombaugh, Rosman, and Allen, history has handed you a special place in the leadership of our Medical Society. You all served as president during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic. Each of you endured living in the clinical trial of COVID-19 and provided a steady hand while guiding our Society, our members, and our patients through the uncharted and often tumultuous sea generated by this pandemic. At the onset of the pandemic, as I was assisting to ready Falmouth Hospital for the potential onslaught of the pandemic, I remember musing about what things would look like on the other side of the scourge. I can resoundingly proclaim that, through your leadership, our MMS emerges from the pandemic stronger and better poised to continue our 142-year history of advocacy and service to our members and patients.

Thank you for your strength, leadership, and dedication!!

Ted
